The Modvellum Credo

Let's talk...

The thing about ModVellum is: we are a brand built on a foundation of integrity. We believe that we have a responsibility to not use harmful or toxic ingredients in our skincare. We believe that animals should never be used for beauty testing and we believe that you can get active ingredients on your skin that penetrate without damaging skin or the environment.

We're Purists.

How do you feel when you are recommended products and they actually do what you say they do?

Have you ever even seen a brand that does that? On the first use or in a day or two?

Maybe you can find other inexpensive products that claim to be green or claim the same attributes we have but we deliver on our promise. We also care that when you rinse off our mask or wash our cleanser down the drain you aren't polluting our water.

How do you feel when you look in the mirror and day after day your face looks just a bit better/healthier and you didn't have to be red or peel to get these results. Would you be happier?

How would you feel if you bought a cleanser and it actually lasted you 300 days? With our unique Drop Technology you can utilize just a tiny amount to start and build up to your desired dose needed for YOUR results. You decide how long that bottle lasts.

Our Values.

- We value using ingredients that are extremely low hazard so that they are safe for pregnant women, individuals who have sensitive skin and even those who currently have or have overcome a major illness.
- We value being mostly vegan so you can feel good about using our products.
- We value hiring the best brand ambassadors out there who come to us with an interest in our growth.
- We value being made in the USA when jobs are so important at a time where economy is starting to stabilize.
- We value being able to provide products that are mostly gluten free because we believe that there is a lack of knowledge about the topical ramifications of using gluten.
- We value working with an FDA lab and correctly labeling our products in accordance to the law (INCI) so you can spot ingredients you may have an issue with.

What Makes Us Different?

After years of everyone burning off their faces with strong peels we believe there is a different and gentler way. Hence the category creators of Chiral-Luxury.

We believe that ingredient sources are just as important as the actual ingredients which is why for example we use a non-endangered Sandalwood. We believe in leaving the planet better than when we arrived so our ingredients are 100 percent biodegradable and use no plastic beads.

Our CEO wants you to know.

At the highest level I, Rachel Tolve, started this company because I wanted a skincare line that didn't beat anyone up with really intense and scary results. I wanted a line that someone with a busy life could use. I wanted a line that I could use, even after having Lyme disease for 18 years.

Most of all I wanted a line that was... Fresh from San Francisco!!! XOXO

Stay Beautiful,

Rachel Tolve, founder and formulator.

The Powdered Serums

For Professional Use Only

SERUMS

Mix with cool water or spray on moisture only

Pure Base–Hyaluronic Acid (also called sodium hyaluronate or HA)

Wheat free fermentation process. Medium chain. Instantly plumping. Used in fillers because it naturally emulates the effect of youthful fullness. Naturally exists between skin cells and extremely high in babies because of high fibroblast activity. Improves elasticity and reverses free radical damage.

Remineralize–Ascorbic acid, Humic acid, Niacinamide (B3)

- Ascorbic Acid (Vitamin C) - reduces melanocyte activity and prevents the breakdown of collagen. Effective for post inflammatory pigmentation secondary to acne. Some early studies are showing that when used in C.I.T therapy this active is a little less than half as effective as PRP.
- Humic Acid - Move over superfoods because Humic Acid is a carbon rich super dirt! A supplement derived from Humus. peat, coal and moss. Similar to Moor mud or Fulvic acid. Anti-viral, anti-inflammatory... eczema, seborrheic keratosis, AK's. It's like fertilizer for your face. Microbial degradation is what concentrates this ingredient. Once it's in this form (Humic) it is very resistant to further degradation. I can be utilized but not further degraded. Boosts body's inflammatory response which we want post procedure.
- Niacinamide (B3) - Out with the old and in with the new. Niacinamide massively increases circulation and flushes the skin, increase cellular respiration. Add this to your blends to supercharge the activity of them by enhancing absorption even further.

Superfruit–Infusion Blend- Acai Berry, Mangosteen

- Acai Berry Extract - anti-inflammatory, cooling soothing, rich in fatty acids that support the structure and firmness of the skin, slows the aging process, packed with vitamins, minerals and antioxidants.
- Mangosteen is fruit from Southeast Asia and super food. Rich in Xanthomes. Use the Nano to penetrate this ingredient into the skin for acne. Extremely anti-inflammatory (high ORAC) and has a deep cleansing action due to high oxygen content.

Mix with cool water or spray on moisture only

Pure mask – (cushion gel base) – fish “marine” collagen

- Collagen Hydrolyzed (Fish) largest molecule in the body. Creates a cushion gel. Feels great while performing Nano however much more effective used post Nano. Only use during treatment if client has Rosacea. Largest molecule in the human body. Does not penetrate because Daltons are too high between 5000-9000. Must be below 2000 to penetrate.

Contains Oilgopeptide which is why everyone thinks that it actually stimulates collagen but it must come into contact with Fibroblasts to be able to do this. It likely doesn't.

Reality: hyper-hydration

Nano-Fill

For Professional Use Only

Nano-Fill TM is a rejuvenating treatment that creates portals in the skin for ingredient acceptance via a vibratory stamping machine.

This treatment includes collagen, and Hyaluronic Acid to create youthful fullness, as well as skin infusions containing antioxidants and vitamins. This increases the firmness of the skin, slows the perceived aging process, and is packed with vitamins, minerals and antioxidants.

This treatment safely and effectively promotes Collagen and Fibroblast activity using a non-invasive wound healing cascade that is standard with a peel BUT with our signature method.

We believe that this can be safely administered by medical professionals as well as licensed estheticians because it is a metal and needle free device and does not draw blood. It also does not reach the dermis and can safely be performed on any ethnicity.

Because we create portals in the skin, we can now deliver high quality and efficacious ingredients on a deeper level than if they were just applied topically. In combination with our protocol this produces a cumulative result.

This procedure may also produce a peeling effect, however typically the risk of Post Inflammatory Hyper-pigmentation is greatly reduced.

Nano-Fill is loved by clients because:

- it's virtually painless
- there's zero downtime
- it may be an alternative to cosmetic injectables and lasers (comparable results)
- helps maintain results from popular treatments such as the Vampire Facial™ and Fraxel™
- it doesn't produce bleeding
- it doesn't puncture/wound the dermis

The unique features of our machine:

- 5 speed settings: up to 12,000 stamps per minute
- Silicon Nano Tip with 46 triangle shaped points range 0 - up to .20 MM
- Disposable tips

Contraindications: scleroderma, scars less than six months old, severe solar keratosis, lesions or skin infections, active herpes, inflamed rosacea, psoriasis, diabetes, auto-immune system dysfunction, or if you are nursing or pregnant.

Also please consult your physician if you have had treatment for Lyme Disease or Chemotherapy within the last year.

Chirally Correct Technology

The Hottest Technology in Skin Care

Chiral skin care is the purest and safest form of skin care on the market today. But what is Chiral? Here at Modvellum, we are firm believers that you should know exactly what is going into or onto your body at all times. So we've compiled a crash course in chiral technology.

The Science behind Chirality

Chirality refers to the biology behind cell movement in the body. Your body's cell molecules are constantly moving to the left or the right in a natural spinning motion. This is sometimes referred to as the "handedness" of molecules. Meaning they are like your hands; comparable to one another but also mirror images. Because of their asymmetrical nature, each side of the chiral molecule acts and reacts differently; while one isomer of the molecule reacts positively, the other may act negatively and do harm to the body.

To make a product chirally correct, pharmaceutical manufacturers isolate and foster the 'good' side of the chiral molecule, completely disregarding the 'bad' side, creating a super molecule that spins only the correct way in order to be accepted by the receptors in other cells therefore causing only benefits to the body.

Why Go Chiral?

Using chirally correct products on your skin can:

- Increase antioxidant protection (Be healthier)
- Increase cellular renewal and cell's efficiency (Disrupt aging)
- Increase collagen and elastin (Look younger)
- Reduce free radical formation (Live cleaner)
- Decrease irritation and side effects (Be happier)

There are millions of chiral receptors in the skin that are affected by what you put on your skin. If you use the wrong products, you may be more susceptible to irritation and side effects and the above benefits may not be available to your skin. So go chiral. Your skin will thank you.

Why ModVellum

At Modvellum, our products are made with natural ingredients found in plants, using the chiral skincare technology at a FDA registered lab. Our products treat a variety of skin conditions including wrinkles and pigmentation. We are free of any harmful chemicals such as propylene glycol, parabens, sodium lauryl sulfate and hydroquinone. Our products are organic, vegan and gluten-free when possible. We ensure that we only provide our customers with the best luxurious skincare products available in the market.

USING THE POWDERED SERUMS AND BLENDS

For Professional Use Only

Being able to create a simple and customized treatment is a great addition to following Porcelain peel and/or to use with the Nano-Fill™. You will also find this treatment effective for general barrier repair.

The cooling effect of both the Pure Mask and the Pure Base dissipate a lot of redness and reduce post procedure heat.

You may also use your customized blend with ultrasound, microcurrent, LED and massage for enhanced absorption.

The protocol is as follows:

- Step 1: Use the Pure Base first and mix with ONLY cool water or Spray On Moisture. The amount of powder needed will vary based on your desired thickness but a small handheld blender may help to achieve a smooth and luxurious product. Usually 1-3 scoops.
- Step 2: Choose your powdered blend such as Reminerlize and add 1/4 scoop. You may choose more than one based on benefits to the client.
- Step 3: Add your Pure Mask powder 1-3 scoops to the leftover product and add more water/Spray On Moisture. Remember the water MUST BE cool.
- Step 4: Apply your custom Collagen mask to your client and leave under steam for up to 40 mins.
- Step 5: Remove and apply sunblock.

Helpful Hint: because Pure Mask and Pure Base create cushion gels they may absorb water rather quickly. It's best to pre-mix them and let them sit for a few minutes.

Caution: When using the Nano-Fill device be aware that a thick gel will clog the device and cause you to constantly submerge the tip in water to clean.

To prevent this use a thin layer of gel and wet with Spray On Moisture consistently.

The ModVellum At Home Prep

Start 10 days before first treatment

One of the best things you can do for your clients is SIMPLIFY their journey to perfect skin.

This is why we believe that peels and prep with ZERO DOWNTIME are essential. The products used before and after the protocol in many cases are the same.

1. The first step is our cleansers and your clients need 2. The EXFOLIATING WASH will be used at night and the BRIGHTENING WASH in the morning. We like to keep sun-sensitizing products away from daytime use for additional protection. The skin needs to have contact with Tyrostat to reduce pigmentation in the morning and in the evening the Cranberry Pomegranate extracts will reduce inflammation while the enzymes and acids will remove surface buildup
2. All clients need the Spray On Moisture because the Heavy Water Molecule will increase the moisture content of the skin which not only allows the moisturizers to penetrate better but it allows for a more even peel. Let your clients know that they can use this product anytime however if they use it with the moisturizers they can get 6 to 8 months out of each jar. This is our 2nd step day and night.
3. After wetting the skin with Spray On Moisture we are going to use a few drops of Luminous Serum twice a day. Songyi Extract is a UV Filter and the D-Glucosamine is a Tyrosinase inhibitor so these two ingredients give additional protection beyond sun protection. When your client is post peel you will see a huge bump in the brightening effect of this product for the next few weeks following the peel.
4. At night we are going to add in the use of the Smoothing Serum. This product is going to build the skin, increase the respiration through Niacinamide and Collagen with Cloudberry Seed Oil which contains high amounts of Vitamin C. It's like a little workout for your face.
5. We also recommend stem cell use on a nightly basis. Explain to your clients that the Nighttime Creme fortifies the skin with a low dose retinol and Vegan Cell Cultures. We increase the strength of the skin when we use this product regularly.

Always remember that with aging skin, heavy use of skin thinning and inflammatory products such as; Retin-A, Glycolic acid will decrease the positive effects of the peel. Be sure to have clients refrain from use as well as needling devices, lasers, and even wash cloths and brushing machines for 3-10 days before the treatment. If the skin is thin or immune compromised please require a physician's consent.

Do not use this peel for 6 weeks following laser treatments and 2 weeks post antibiotics. Clients who are prone to Herpes need to consult a physician and must be on an anti-viral for 10 days prior.

Also clients must use a mandatory SPF 30 during the day for the entire process.

THE PORCELAIN / SUSTENANCE INFUSION PROTOCOLS

Directions for Porcelain –Step 1 in our Peel Protocol

1. Cleanse with Exfoliating Wash 2 times and sponge off, then cleanse with the Brightening wash 2 times and sponge off.
2. You may prep the skin with Luminous Mist using a non-woven 2 X 2 or 4x4 (optional) if degreasing is needed.
3. Apply Porcelain, let sit for 3 to 5 minutes, add water to the skin and massage and “polish” for up to 40 minutes.
4. Remove the peel with plush moist cotton this will pick up the physical part of the peel better. You can also dust the remaining particles off the skin with DRY cotton once the skin is dry. Instruct your patient to keep their eyes closed the entire time.
5. You are ready for Step 2 - Sustenance

Additional theory: Using no water and more product will increase strength of the peel as you are putting more Diatoms and Jojoba esters on the skin. For sensitive skins always add water early on in the process this dilutes the product but also raises the Ph of the acid.

You are simultaneously feeding the skin while polishing the skin so your client's skin should “whiten” or “glow” before your eyes. Also there may be some sensation of broken glass in the skin in areas where you are polishing more. For example between the eyes to combat fine lines. Because the peel contains Bisabolol when you release your pressure on a targeted area the client will feel an immediate cooling effect as deeper layers of the Stratum Corneum make contact with this ingredient.

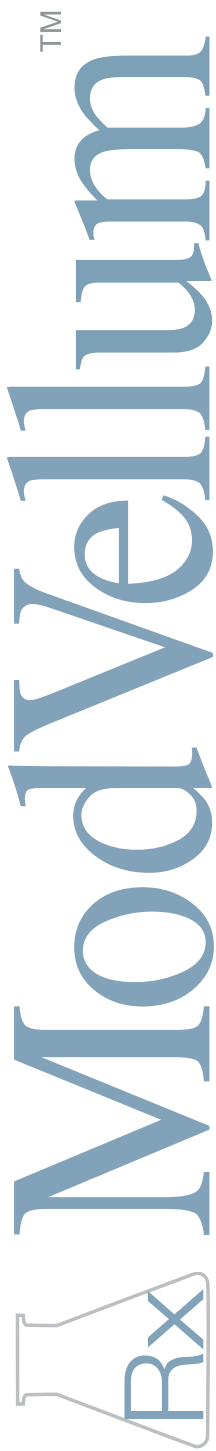

In many cases, redness will not present.

Directions for Sustenance – Step 2 in our Infusion Protocol

1. Apply a small amount of Sustenance to the skin directly. Use a garbanzo bean sized amount.
2. Let product sit for a few minutes. Your client may feel some discomfort for a minute or so.
3. Spray the skin with Spray On Moisture and massage the product into the skin. You may wet your fingertips with distilled water or even coconut juice (fresh). At this time add in a few drops of the Smoothing Serum and the Luminous Serum this will inhibit any pigment that wants to rise to the surface and also start the cell renewal process.
4. Massage the face VERY DEEPLY focusing on setting the result of the peel.
5. Keep adding water, Spray on Moisture and/or Coconut Water (fresh) to the skin. Until product has gone into the skin.
6. Finish your treatment by pressing the skin with full handed movements until dry and there is no more slip when wet with water.

Additional theory: The goal of Step 2 is the creation of a human shield. We are feeding the skin with essential fatty acids in the form of OliveM1000. This product is like a magic spackle that “fills” the excoriation we’ve just created and is chemically similar to the skin's own barrier.

The cell cultures relax the skin and create a smoother appearance and one that is “frozen in time”. Essentially Sustenance increases our chances of having ZERO DOWNTIME and ZERO post peel redness.

“Natural” Skincare? Or Farce That Needs To End Already? You Decide.

I get plenty of questions from estheticians on a daily basis about chemicals. They usually express concern about our products not being “natural”.

The concern, actually stems from mass confusion that circumvents the industry to this day.

When skincare is effective it can be naturally sourced, however it will almost always contain synthetic ingredients. It has to if you are going to have it be effective (as in produce an anti-aging result), and have a shelf life.

Think about it.

If you throw some berries in your blender, and slap it on your face it’s not going to do anything, and in a few days they’re going to develop mold.

Well OK. That’s a really simplistic and unrealistic analogy. Or is it?

The truth is that sometimes the “natural” ingredient lacks molecular charisma. You must connect the correct side (or spin) to the cell receptor to get an effect. This is just like plugging in your light. That plug fits right into that socket the cords carries that message to the bulb and then... we have light!

So we need to ask ourselves questions as estheticians. What is acceptable (chemically) in skincare and what isn’t?

I think as professionals we have to stop using this word NATURAL it reduces us. It’s confusing to our clients and until I formulated my first product it confused me.

If we are really talking about “natural” ingredients in skincare then we are talking about using Lemon Juice or even pure Limonene (extract from skin of citrus) in a product for example...whereas the Synthetic “chirally corrected” l-Limonene is not only has that left handed spin BUT produces the result that we want.

We must not confuse this with D-Limonene which is harmful and irritating to the skin.

Would you ever recommend lemon juice on your client’s face?

Probably not.

It’s up to us to educate our clients on what “natural” means and what it doesn’t. “Natural” means plant sourced, hell it even means animal sourced right?

What we really mean... “occurs in nature”.

Biological might also be the term in that case but you get my point. The word natural is being used in an unintelligible way and that’s got to stop.

We owe it to ourselves, our clients and our sanity.

When a client comes to my office. I don't try and fit into the Paradigm that the “natural movement” has created. Everyone is confused sometimes even me!

I personally make sure my client knows that ModVellum products are almost entirely plant sourced, even our Lactic acid is dairy free.

That's right, it's made in a lab and they won't have a reaction because of this.

This is one of the reasons why our Exfoliating Wash doesn't irritate even the most sensitive skins. This SYNTHETIC acid is safe, and more effective than its natural counterpart.

I also make sure that our clients understand that we are free of artificial fragrance because artificial is UNRELATED to synthetic in this case. Artificial anything seems to be linked to many different diseases.

Agreed?

It's really a challenge to use essential oil and fruit based scents for example (we struggle with this as a brand because those scents change over time) however, in this application the artificial chemicals called PHTHALATES/DEP are there to make fragrance linger. They have strong ties to hormone disruptors and also are linked to cancer.

There are other CHEMICALS that sound really scary in name but actually don't present a challenge.

A great example of this would be SODIUM BENZOATE.

If you look at the molecular structure it is created by “reacting” Benzoic acid which occurs in plants such as apples, prunes, certain greens etc., with sodium hydroxide (Na).

Benzoic acid does not work as a preservative in cosmetics because it isn't water soluble. If it were to penetrate the skin, which is rare, the liver/kidneys would have some trouble excreting/filtering it out.

But now as you're reading this take a look at the Skin Deep Database on EWG.org

The ingredient itself has a mild rating of 3, however in cosmetic preparations that contain it... the rating falls to a 1 (non-hazard). This is because of the tiny amount needed and THIS is how we estheticians do our analysis for our clients.

Now let's take this a bit further. What if your client has auto-immune issues? Now we've really got to take it a step further here. Anything we do with these clients must be

My theory is that clients like me, who have Lyme disease for example, can use SODIUM BENZOATE because it would not be stored in the body

Remember that a Lyme patient typically has multi-system issues or infections so we don't want to boil the pot over.

This chemical compound is essentially made from “natural” ingredients and I would rather have this one ingredient, than have mold in my products.

Why is this so important? Mold is “natural”. Right?

Contact with Mold in the wrong individual could temporarily reduce adrenal function and I have noticed my energy would start to wane. So if you give me that “natural” product it could in theory be pretty bad for my health.

Mold poisoning is also very hard to get rid of so professionals should never sell products that bear this risk.

To add to our industry-wide confusion...some companies do not list any preservatives on their labels. The reason for that isn't what you'd expect. It's because they aren't labeling in accordance with the law for exportation (INCI).

Sigh...

Trust me when I say this... that organic product was created from raw supplies AND those raw ingredients had to be preserved before (and after) that product was made.

Remember the berries in a blender?

INCI names are mandated on the ingredient decks of all personal care products. This also means that you want to look closely at “natural” lines because they frequently omit preservatives and residues, unknowingly.

Think of all the individuals' cooking up things in their kitchen and putting them in packages and selling them as skincare. They go online and order supplies randomly, watch a quick YouTube video and BAM! a new brand is born.

So the product that is going to work, is not the more “natural” one, and actually the one that's correctly labeled (INCI) and recommended by the trained professional.

Let's change the language. Shall we?

3 Key Reasons Your Clients Cleanser is the Genesis of Problems and Solutions

It's easy to forget our background in product knowledge when everyday new products are introduced. The old rules about what to recommend and why have changed, BUT the key reasons they work haven't.

I wanted to write this article because the most important product in our client's bathroom cabinet is still their cleanser. Read on about what exactly goes into the #1 selling product in the spa and why.

The #1 reason is percentages and they remain king.

The chemical reaction of the actual ingredients, in the right PERCENTAGE, is what causes the result. Bam! There you have it.

Now I want to tell you something.

INFERIOR (or non-professional) product lines talk about how "many" ingredients they contain for a reason. They're highlighting an individual ingredient as a selling point. A simple and effective strategy for sure.

However, as estheticians we need to know that this does NOT MATTER to your client. I promise you it doesn't. Educate your clients and they will not be fooled again. They are hungry for this information!

So, to reiterate, the only thing that matters is percentage and the laboratories making these NOT SO GREAT PRODUCTS know that number. I'm not saying brands will disclose it they shouldn't (because it's like their DNA). I'm saying they should USE it or not call themselves clinical.

Ok so why do our clients buy cleansers that do not work? And why do companies sell them? They're all made in labs right? My clients always ask me this.

A key persuasion is price. McDonalds is bigger than your local burger joint for this reason. Is your client's cleanser being sold at a supermarket for $10 or less? Usually the answer is yes.

So here's what you tell your clients.

A low price almost always indicates that the percentage is off. Most "branded" product lines are designed around cost. They decide who they want to market their products to and that determines the strength (cost) of the products.

They focus on how it looks, smells and feels. NOT what it does.

If the cleanser has an EXPENSIVE ingredient on the label (like a Stem Cell) and is retailing for under 10 bucks it won't be effective. I guarantee it.

A skincare line can LEGALLY list any ingredient they put into a product even if it's at an ineffective percentage... and many do. It's a way of fooling your precious clients into opening their wallet for the latest buzzword.

Ingredients that are already known by the general public sell products to first time purchasers (more than anything else). Just walk down the health and beauty aisle and you see Acai Berry serum, Vitamin C cream, Argan Oil Mask, a Vitamin E line... blah, blah, blah...oh wait... what's the latest?

Snail Slime.

The #2 reason is surfactants. Get em wrong and you're gonna have a bad time.

Another crucial differential is this:

MOST cleansers on the market that are "gentle" don't really cleanse the skin. The client then NEEDS an astringent toner to remove the rest of the dirt and makeup. It's the surfactants that are used or not used that matter in this case.

One method to DISGUISE a harsh surfactant is a moisturizer is added to a product for a "cold creme" effect. It can somewhat negate the surfactant by leaving a film, and preventing some of the foaming/stripping action that a surfactant would cause. This creates an ILLUSION that the cleanser is moisturizing.

Is it me or does this type of formulating seem a bit ridiculous?

Here is another example. Let's say your client uses a soap that advertises that it contains ¼ moisturizing creme in it.

Sound familiar?

It removes dirt because it's alkaline BUT it also leaves a creme/residue. Over time they would feel a build-up on the skin. This would also present as texture and is counterproductive to making a lasting change in the skin. It's like an antagonist to professional treatments. The more you do the more they need because they refuse to switch to EFFECTIVE products. I fire these clients.

Did I just say that?!

I digress...

Because the buildup is evident and increasing, your client then starts exfoliating (likely with a scrub which contains a harsh surfactant as well as ground up seeds or beads).

The point of this is to try and tap away at that texture, brick by brick, but the next morning they use that HORRIBLE cleanser... and the cycle starts again. Continuing to strip and degrade the skins protective barrier is problematic and then, we have a situation.

Now in the case of chiral cleansers the surfactants are from coconut or sugar mainly BUT they have different molecular structures. More than one is needed because they work as synergists.

Here are some examples of their functions: some foam, some breakdown water or soften water, some rinse away dirt.

All are gentle because they are derived from plant sources. This is an effective approach ALWAYS.

Let us use the surfactants in our ModVellum Exfoliating Wash as an example here:

Suga®Nate 160NC

INCI: SODIUMLAURYLGLUCOSIDES HYDROXY-PROPYLSULFONATE

A naturally derived, sugar-based surfactant from renewable feedstock sources. It is prepared by combining glucose with natural fatty alcohol (from coconut oil) and processing it further to create a mild, sulfate-free cleansing agent. Due to its natural origin, readily BIODEGRADABLE provides excellent foaming properties and is utilized in products for babies and individuals with sensitive skin. Also we can source this ingredient preservative free so it won't go bad during shipment!

AND also;

Mackol™ CAS-100N

INCI: SODIUM METHYL COCOYL TAURATE

A mild, anionic, vegetable oil (coconut oil) based cleansing agent. It has excellent foaming properties and is used to create gentle, non-stripping surfactant systems with dense creamy lather.

The number #3 reason is Ph. Cell health depends on it!

Ph is pivotal in cleansers. You do not want to disturb the acid mantle during the cleansing process, because when you do the skin is essentially injured. This INVISIBLE injury prevents the products that follow from working.

Cleansers that disturb ph are usually on the alkaline side. They dry (strip) and over clean the skin. Skin should not be "squeaky clean" post cleanse. That's not healthy.

When skin IS healthy already it can restore the acid mantle...sometimes. For example this might temporarily be ok if you're 13 years old. At that age the skin cycle is much faster and regenerates in the blink of an eye. A 13-year-old probably has great wound healing which would be imperative given the nature of alkaline skincare.

But what if you're not 13? Chances are if you are reading this you (and your clients) are NOT.

Our clients are concerned with anti-aging and they want their products to be as effective as possible, this is what we do as estheticians. So we need to give them a jumping off point.

A cleanser is just that and it must be our very first recommendation. It needs to absolutely DO NO HARM.

So what is a good ph for cleansers?

Good cleansers are on the acidic side. This is important because the skin is on the acidic side for example 5.5. A toner is not required to finish the cleansing process or restore the skin if this is the case.

It is fair to say that when someone switches to our Exfoliating Wash they may be able to correct a myriad of skin conditions. The skin maintains the strength to protect itself from invaders such as bacteria's, virus', foreign invaders because it does not have to re-calibrate after being washed.

At a ph of 4.64 - 5.60 pH it's really going to HELP the Salicylic acid and the pomegranate enzymes to cut through the "grime" on the skin. This works for most people who want to treat a skin condition such as lines and wrinkles or scarring.

For acne clients we suggest the Gentle Wash at a slightly higher PH because it's less disturbing to a skin that is new to active products.

Now why is it less disturbing? And why am I even using that word when we are talking about Chiral products? Aren't they supposed to be better for skin?

The short answer is yes.

But the devil is in the details here.

At a ph of 6.87 it's less of shock to a client coming off of (for lack of a better word) a "drugstore or supermarket skincare product".

This product may have an alkaline (higher and stripping) ph.

The less change we make regarding ph the less traumatic the switch. We've all heard of those clients who suddenly get the worst breakouts they have ever experienced when you change the cleanser.

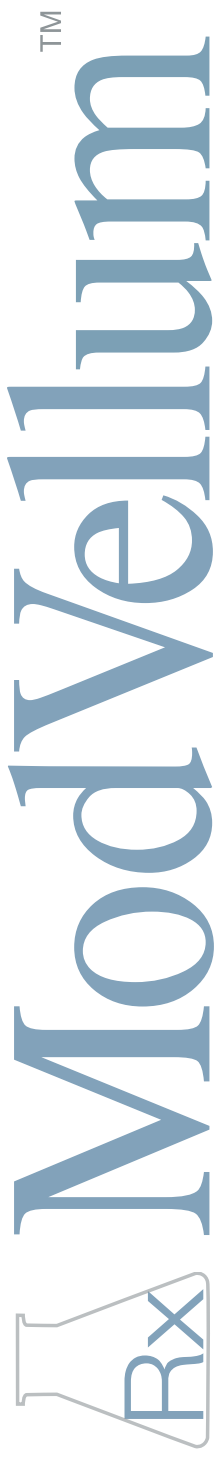

In Summary:

-The most effective cleansers in today's market; clean the skin without leaving a residue and contain effective, active ingredients, in the right percentages.

-They do not strip the skin and disturb the acid mantle which causes adverse reactions.
